Using Social Emotional Learning and Culturally Responsive Learning to Support Conversations Around Antiracism

DRS. TIA BARNES & MARIKA GINSBURG-BLOCK
PARTNERSHIP FOR PUBLIC EDUCATION
UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE
Housekeeping

This session is being recorded
Please enter your name and affiliation into the Chat box
You are muted by default in Zoom webinars
Enter your comments/questions in the Q&A
Questions will be addressed toward the end of the presentation.
Poll Time

POLLS
Our Presenters

Tia N. Barnes, Ph.D.
Assistant Professor
College of Education and Human Development
University of Delaware

Marika Ginsburg-Block, Ph.D.
Associate Professor
College of Education and Human Development
University of Delaware
Objectives

Understand current context of inequity in the US
Understand challenges to engaging in conversations concerning race Understand what Social Emotional Learning is Understand what Culturally Responsive Pedagogy is Strategies for using these concepts in discussions concerning race and inequity
Equity

COVID-19 inequities

Policing
We cannot ignore the elephant in the room
Brave Conversations

A shift from comfort and feeling safe and a move toward understanding and rising to the challenge of genuine dialogue on diversity and social justice issues.
Concerns of educators during this time

Engaging in controversial topics
Legal ramifications
Lack of knowledge
Virtual environment
Fear of being labeled a racist

Bernie Mac Jun 4, 2020 5:45am
All Lives Matter

Spock Here Jun 4, 2020 7:52am
The conversation is about racial injustice and systemic racism. You know, like why are some people more at risk of dying by cop....Or why some people can’t go for a jog, or even go to sleep at home. It’s those lives that people are talking about genius

Bernie Mac Jun 4, 2020 8:48am
Wrong. People are talking mostly about rioting, burning, looting and murder. Small minded people like you think those crimes are acceptable. Civilized people do not. You ain’t civilized.

Spock Here Jun 4, 2020 9:02am
The people talking about the unacceptable and horrendous rioting, burning, looting, and murder instead of the man who died with a knee on his neck have their priorities mixed up. Small minded people like you must think that is acceptable. Civilized people do not. You ain’t civilized.

Bernie Mac Jun 4, 2020 10:17am
Spork thinks and acts like a child.

Spock Here Jun 4, 2020 12:12pm
Thanks Bern, we all try to lower ourselves to your standard. Not hard to do, I might add. You are very challenging.
What other concerns come to mind?
Culturally Responsive Pedagogy

Self-reflection to work through biases
Create meaningful relationships with students and families
Deeply examine the curriculum
Build a classroom community
Social-Emotional Learning

Self-Awareness
Social-Awareness
Self-Management
Relationship Skills
Responsible Decision-Making
Self-Awareness

Examining how you feel concerning issues of equity and race

Examining your values and biases

Providing reflective opportunities for students to examine their feelings concerning equity and race

Supporting students in determining what they value and how this influences how they see the world
Social Awareness

- Find ways to connect with students even in virtual environment
- Foster relationships with families
- Embed discussions around diversity and differences in your instruction
- Create opportunities for students to learn about others’ perspectives
Self-Management

Self-motivation to learn more about different cultures, experiences and perspectives

Stress management to support our well-being to engage in conversations

Supporting students in impulse control

Setting goals and planning actions to meet those goals with students
Relationship Skills

Build positive relationships
Become a good listener
Teach students to negotiate conflict constructively
Support students in communication skills
Responsible Decision Making

Learn more about the history of race, White privilege, and systemic racism in the United States

Consider and advocate for needed changes

Introduce your students to critical thinking

Teach students to evaluate facts without jumping to conclusions
Creating community

Create a virtual community agreement

Intentionally begin each synchronous session online with a connection activity

Offer opportunities for students to share their stories and experiences

Encourage listening

Consider ways to incorporate procedures and routines in the online environment
But First....

Engage in your own work and conversations to support you in facilitating these conversations with students

Consider any legal ramifications

Seek out training and resources

Invite classroom speakers

Use documents and stories to foster conversations
What NOT to do

Engage in brave conversations with your students without adequate planning
Role-playing to help in feeling empathy (think role-playing as oppressed groups)
Belittle students for their perspectives
Single out members of oppressed groups
What can you do on Monday?

- Increase your own self-awareness
- Create and implement a lesson to increase classroom community
- Engage your students in a discussion about perspective taking
- Implement an activity that allows students to practice debate skills
- Seek out additional resources

- What are some strategies that you have used?
Self awareness

"As a Black woman, I'm always cautious because I know that the color of my skin is triggering for certain people." – Tiffany Johnson, Queens NY
Self awareness activity

If you can, try to think about the first time you remember being aware of yourself as a racial being. Identify a personal or professional experience that forced you to consider your differences from others. What did you think, feel, do or say?

What did you learn about yourself from this experience and how might that learning be translated to your work?
Resources

https://www.bravecoalition.com/brave-conversations

https://poorvucenter.yale.edu/FacultyResources/Diversity-Inclusion

http://www.edchange.org/multicultural/activityarch.html

The Political Classroom by Diana Hess
Upcoming PPEWebinars

Free Webinar!

Using SEL and Culturally Responsive Pedagogy To Support Conversations Around Anti-Racism

PART I
THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 17
3:00–4:00 PM

PART II
WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 7
3:00–4:00 PM

Tia N. Barnes and Marika Ginsburg-Block
College of Education and Human Development
University of Delaware

Understanding Student Motivation for Online Learning

Wednesday, October 21 | 3:00-4:00 PM

Teomara (Teya) Rutherford
Assistant Professor, School of Education
University of Delaware
Thank you for attending!